

Sight Unseen

SATURDAY SELECTS

Week of May 17, 2021

by Dana Covit

A weekly Saturday recap to share with you our favorite links, discoveries, exhibitions, and more from the past seven days. This week, a Swedish furniture brand focused on sustainability, a show that explores the healing powers of color, and the coolest swing set you've ever seen.

Exhibitions

Color, geometry, and energy are at play in "Remain In Light," a new solo exhibition of paintings by Brooklyn-based artist Matt Phillips opening today at The Landing gallery in Los Angeles. A textured topographic quality draws you in while their large scale makes basking in their Technicolor glory all the more inviting.

Read the full article here.